Day 1: 1 st November 2018
Time	Registration: 8.30 AM to 10.00 AM
10.00 AM to 11.00 AM	Inaugural Session Theme: Information Disorders: Disrupting Digital Citizenship (Auditorium) Background: Information disorders have been rising with the emergence of social media and big data analytics and Artificial Intelligence. Their scope ranges from rumor to propaganda to cyber hybrid threats. They encompass issues of radicalization, hate speech and other forms of intimidation of populations. They potentially present risks for democratic processes and national sovereignty while presenting other societal costs that can undermine trust in the “information society”. Information disorders are varied and they don’t have a single root cause. Some of them have been enabled by the development of social media but this does not exonerate some political actors, and extremist groups in the civil society actors. They have caused disruption in elections and they have undermined confidence in the news and information sector, they have sought, directly or indirectly, to take control over media images and

	representations. The session will have opening remarks by panelists on issue and perspectives. The session will focus on the following objectives: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Harnessing information disorders, scoping the issue and assessing the responses: Insights from speakers 2. Scope of the issue (dissemination of rumors and fake news on the internet, governance)? Societal costs? How to minimize costs and vulnerabilities? What platform and media responsibility? Identifying new opportunities and new initiatives? Co-regulation perspectives? What balance of policy actions? Digital Empowerment Foundation (DEF) and Digital Cooperation (UN Secretary General High Level Panel) will have 3 minutes each to address the issue at India and South Asia level. The session will showcase highlights Digital Cooperation's work. Panelists <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1.
